MICH. READY FOR TOURISTS?

SECY. MARSTON SAYS VAST NUMBERS ARE COMING.

"At the office of the East Michigan Tourist Association a check up is being made of the improvements; in the way of new cottages and additional hotel accommodations which are being built to take care of the ever growing summer tourist traffic which comes into Eastern Michigan," said the Secretary, T. F. Marston. "While responses have not been received as yet from many to whom inquiries were sent we have found that in many localities resort owners are alive to the demand that is going to be made upon them are bending every effort to meet that demand but it is already evident that there will be a big shortage of both cottages and hotel rooms. Thousands of dollars are being spent in the district for improving facilities for caring for the visitors, but the inquiries already being received in response to the advertising being carried on by the association indicates that with any kind of a real summer season the influx of tourists will show an astounding increase over last year." Mr. Marston suggests that in order to provide all the accommodations possible for these visitors, who leave many dollars in every town, that the boards of commerce or other trade organizations appoint a committee to list every private home which is ready to take one or more roomers during the summer season, visitors to be taken to these rooms when local hotels are filled.

Among the publicity efforts of the association which will soon be distributed is the forthcoming issue of "See America First," an illustrated magazine which indicates its mission by its name. This issue of the magazine will be devoted almost entirely to Eastern Michigan, with many beautiful views and numerous special articles covering the lakes, woods and streams of this section of the State.

Another advertising proposition, the success of which depends upon the

JUNIOR PROM IS BIG SUCCESS

IS WELL ATTENDED AND VERY ENJOYABLE.

The annual Junior prom of Grayling High School was held at the school gymnasium Friday night of last week and was one of the finest parties of the year. There was a large crowd present and all had an enjoyable time.

The gymnasium was specially attractively decorated. White and pink artificial sweet peas strung on fancy cords and pale green crepe paper formed a canopy above the dancers. In the center built in the form of a cage, also of crepe paper and flowers, sat the orchestra. And the walls also hung full of cords of pink and white flowers, forming pleasing panels. The whole scheme in color and form was very pleasing.

The music was furnished by Schram's orchestra and the people of Grayling may well feel proud of this local organization. They played real music and it was exceptionally excellent, and won many fine commendations from the dancers.

At 10:30 o'clock a brief program was given. Mrs. Roy Milnes sang "Chirp Chirp" and responded with an encore to the very generous applause that was given her. Misses Margrethe and Ella Hanson gave a very pretty and graceful dance. They too received a very generous applause.

Of course after dancing a number of times the dancers begin to feel the need of something refreshing in the way of eat, so in due time were privileged to participate in ice cream, wafers and cake.

The young people of the class of 1925 are deserving of fine credit for the way they conducted their party. And also Miss Thomas, the class advisor who was largely responsible for the planning and arranging of the affair. At the beginning of the evening a large number of the class passed about the room welcoming the guests with a hearty hand shake. It was a very fine thing to do and added to the dignity of the party.

Another pleasant feature was the grand march, which took place in about the middle of the program. This was led by Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Keyport and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lewis.

It was one of the most enjoyable junior parties the school has ever given.

Among out-of-town guests in attendance were: Miss Laura Thompson Twining; Miss Cecelia Henry and Howard DeWaele, Roscommon; John Yuill, Vanderbilt; Sheldon Hull, West Branch; Rolly Hull, Saginaw; Olaf Michaelson, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McInnis, Detroit; Mr. E. W. Behlke, Berntide; Minnesota; Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Rockwell, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Trudo, Mr. and Mrs. George Ford, Mr. and Mrs. John Guggisberg, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Haight, Mrs. Jack Fagan, Miss Jane Foster, Miss Leona Gocha, and the Messrs. Carl Guggisberg, Farrell Miller, Mark Demerest and Greydon Evans, all of Gaylord; Mrs. William Leach, Bay City; Mrs. Edward Kling, Flint; Mrs. Calvin Church, Center Line, Mich.; Miss Mary Nelson, Mancelona; Robert Barrett, Saginaw.

ALL OVER.

The rain prevented the Gaylord baseball team from playing here last Friday. They played this week Tuesday, but the rain prevented them from finishing the game. However the score was 7-9 in favor of Grayling.

OBSERVES NAT. HOSPITAL DAY

MERCY HOSPITAL WELCOMES MANY CALLERS.

Monday afternoon the Sisters of Mercy, assisted by the Hospital Aid Society welcomed the people of Grayling at Mercy Hospital.

It being National Hospital Day the afternoon was appropriately spent in visiting their very worthy institution which is the pride of Grayling citizens. This appreciation was shown by the large crowds which gathered both afternoon and evening.

Schram's orchestra furnished splendid music all during the afternoon, which was very much enjoyed. Twenty little girls in white wound a May pole which hung with pink and white streamers. This added to the pleasure of the guests as well as did the duet dance which was so artistically rendered by the Misses Margrethe and Ella Hanson.

In the evening the crowd again assembled to listen to the Citizens band and were rewarded by an hour's concert of excellent music. Lunch was served on both occasions by the Aid ladies and many availed themselves of this opportunity. The affair was very successful socially as well as financially as the society were able to turn over approximately $250 to the hospital.

The Hospital Aid society wishes to thank the public for its liberal patronage, Schram's orchestra and the City band for the music, Chris Olsen for the ice cream and everyone who helped in any way to make the affair successful.

YOU CAN HAVE FRESH STRAWBERRIES UNTIL SNOW FLIES!

(By F. F. Rockwell, Horticultural Editor "Farm and Fireside.")

You can never have too many strawberries! The usual strawberry season always seems to be too short. We eat our fill of the delicious fruit served with cream, try to satisfy a ravenous family with enough short-cake—and by the time we start preserving and canning, the season abruptly ends and our preserving with it.

Even where we are lucky enough or thrifty enough to have a strawberry patch of our own, we never seem to get enough from it during the season to satisfy our strawberry appetites and at the same time to store enough away on the pantry shelves for our winter needs.

But this state of affairs is really very unnecessary for we are only wiser in choosing the varieties of berries which we set out in our beds we could procure plenty of the finest and most delicious fruit for our needs in spring and mid-summer, and even enough to spare for fall use right up until the time the plants are overtaken by the frost.

It merely requires a little extra care and forethought in the matter of choosing and planting just the right varieties to bring the possibilities of the "strawberry festival" to our household and community through spring, summer and autumn.

Select Varieties to Give a Long Succession of Fruit.

There are some strawberry plants that bear extra early, at the end of April or beginning of May—still others that are in their prime in July and August—while of recent years a new type has been placed on the market called the "Everbearing" that produces crops of berries until snow time. It is possible to get a crop from the "Everbearing" sorts right through spring, summer and fall, but in allowing the plants to bear continuously in this manner does not procure the very best berries. To obtain the very finest of fruit it is better to keep nipping the blossoms off the "Everbearing" varieties through the regular "strawberry season," and let the plants come into full bearing in the fall months.

By using this you can get great juicy ones that they would produce if they ones than they would produce if they were allowed to bear all summer long.

It is the best plan therefore to grow the "Everbearing" sorts for your fall crop and to set other varieties in your bed for producing your early summer yield.

Early Ozark is a fine early variety; or Early Jersey Giant. For a second try Sample and Glen Mary, there is Edmund Wilson, Brandywine or Nick Ohmer. For late there are Lupton, Fendall, and Chesapeake. For the fall bearing berries Progressive, Superb, and Champion Everbearing are the best of the "Everbearing" varieties.

If you have never even started a berry patch do not let this spring pass by before you have added strawberries to your garden and thereby earned the undying gratitude of your family and maybe add a new source of welcome income to your pocket book.

It is a comparatively easy matter to start a bed if you have a good sunny spot in your garden where the situation is open and airy.

How to Make Sure of Success.

Two requirements are necessary for a successful bed—deep soil and thorough drainage. You must always have your ground well prepared, that is, plowed unusually deep and finely raked or harrowed to get it into a fine condition. Add to the soil plenty of fine well rotted manure, or where you haven't sufficient manure add a commercial fertilizer; the best for this purpose is ground bone and muriate of potash.

Apply a light dressing of nitrate of soda to the plants just after setting and soon after the blossoms open in the spring.

Before setting out your new plants

THINGS UNUSUAL

NOVEL TRIP AFFORDED.

Where is the stone forest? The world's largest telescope? The Skyscraper church? What is the world's largest building? Answers to these questions and many others will be found in "Things Unusual," a new series of eleven special articles, the first of which is published elsewhere in this issue of the Avalanche. Written by T. T. Maxey, this new department will take readers to many different parts of the United States and show and explain to them the various wonders which have become famous attractions the world over.

In one article Mr. Maxey takes you through the complicated underground tunneling of many feet below the streets of Chicago. Later he will escort you through the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. From there he jumps to Palm Canyon of California; Faucett hall of Boston; the Ashokan reservoir in the Catskills, and to that unusual place, Hat Island, in Utah, inhabited only by birds.

These and many other places of interest are on the schedule of these who follow Mr. Maxey's fascinating articles during the next eleven weeks in the AVA LANCHE. Begin reading them today and learn the interesting facts connected with the places to which so many references are made in your reading.

get them into good planting shape by trimming off all dead, broken or large leaves, and also by trimming back the roots about one half. This will give you a good sturdy plant that will "set" nicely.

The job of actually setting out the new plant in the soil is one of the most important of all in starting your new berry bed. The best time in which to set your plants is in a cloudy day or late in the afternoon. Do not cover up the crown of the plant. Set the plant in the soil only deep enough to well cover all the roots. Set them in extra firmly pressing down each side of the newly set plant with the balls of the feet.

The plants may be set out in rows about a foot apart and there may be four or five in a bed. All runners are pinched off from the plant as soon as they start and the ground should be kept well hoed and cultivated between the rows and hills.

The frequent and thorough cultivation must never be neglected if you wish to receive your reward in the very largest reddest and most delicious berries that "have ever come your way!"

POINCARÉ LOSES TO SOCIALISTS

PARTY OF FRENCH PREMIER IS BEATEN IN GENERAL ELECTION.

Paris—A complete change of French policy toward German occupation, reparations and international debts looms as a possibility after defeat of the Poincaré parties in the French general elections.

According to International News dispatches the French people, evidently are tired of Poincaré's aggressive policies which have kept Europe stirred up for four years.

During his tenure Poincaré has built up the most powerful military establishment in Europe, principally in the air. It has been part of his programme to keep French troops in the Ruhr to guarantee indemnity payments, to refuse to make immediate provision for the payment of war debts and to negotiate military agreements with various powers surrounding Germany.

Such agreements have been concluded with Belgium, Poland, Roumania and Czechoslovakia.

Former Premier David Lloyd George of England, has been one of the most severe critics of Premier Poincaré and his policies. According to the British statesman, Poincaré is the head of a powerful militarist group which is endangering the peace of Europe.

Communists and Socialists in France have made similar accusations against Poincaré. They claim he has adopted the same policy that the Kaiser maintained before the world war when he built up the biggest and strongest army the world has ever seen.

Important diplomatic results, the British believe, will result from the French landslide. The new French government will probably accept the Dawes report, only holding out for the minimum reparation figure for France, which M. Poincaré has demanded, but ending trouble about sanctions and evacuation of the Ruhr.

17 DEAD IN GERMAN RED RIOTS

Outbreak Comes at Unveiling of Statue to Molke.

Halle, Germany—Fifteen German communists and two policemen were killed and more than 100 wounded in rioting which broke out in connection with the unveiling of a statue of Field Marshal Von Molke.

Fifty-two communists are in hospitals in a serious condition. The exact number of communist wounded can not be ascertained as many of them were carried away by friends and treated at their homes.

Seventy thousand monarchist supporters marched in review before General Ludendorff, Prince Oscar, nephew of the former kaiser, and other royalists at the Halle race track.

DETROIT CARMEN DELAY STRIKE

Appeal to Court to Force Arbitration of Wage Increase.

Detroit—There will be no strike of street railway employees, at least until after next Monday, it was decided at a mass meeting of between 2,500 and 3,000 of the 3,900 D. S. R. platform workers.

The meeting voted complete approval of the action of their union officers in instituting mandamus proceedings in circuit court to compel the street railway commission to arbitrate issues in dispute. These include recognition of union officers as representatives of the men and demands for a 14 per cent increase in wages.

ROBBERS MAKE $25,000 HAUL

Safe of Jewelry Store Cracked While Hundreds Pass.

Detroit—Diamonds, other jewelry and money to the value of between $25,000 and $30,000 were taken from the store of the L. Black Optical Co., 1012 Woodward avenue, by safe-crackers who blew the door from one safe and pried their way into another. Entrance to the place apparently was made through a skylight.

Hundreds of people passed the place, in the very heart of the city, while the safe-crackers were at work.

Michigan Happenings

Vaclav Simek, 26 years old, who says he is a graduate of the University of Prague, was sentenced to from one to two years in prison by Judge Frank Murphy on a charge of malicious threats to extort $1,050,000 from Edsel B. Ford, auto magnate. Mrs. Anna Hladik, at whose home Simek roomed, is awaiting trial on a similar charge. Simek told the court that the letters threatening the life of Mr. Ford's children were written by Mrs. Hladik and copied by him after a group of 20 men had threatened his life if he failed to do so.

Mrs. Lycurgus McCoy, who, with her husband, Elder Lycurgus McCoy, not long ago celebrated her sixty-eighth wedding anniversary, died. She was 91 years old. For 40 years, Elder and Mrs. McCoy have been members of the sanitarium family, the former serving as chaplain. Mrs. McCoy was well known for charitable work, until age and an accident in which she broke her arm last July, made her a semi-invalid. The sudden death of her only grandson, C. MacSheridan, in April, also was a shock to Mrs. McCoy.

Announcement has been made that Basil Brewer, former publisher and part owner of the Omaha Bee, has purchased a substantial interest in the Lansing Capital News. George L. Hammill, who has been in the newspaper business for 15 years, has also purchased stock. Arthur L. Francis, one of the founders of the Lansing paper in 1921, remains as manager. Former Gov. Albert E. Sleeper, is first vice-president and one of the principal stockholders. No changes in policy have been announced.

High school students make good police. So say the student council and faculty of Central High school, Kalamazoo, following a tryout of the "patrol" system in the halls. One student is on duty for an hour at a time, his job being to watch the lockers and maintain quiet. In a recent fire at the school, the student cops displayed ability and efficiency in guiding 1,400 pupils out of the building.

W. F. Hammond, 42 years old, manager of the Almont branch of the Michigan Bell Telephone company, was killed when his automobile was struck by a Detroit United Interurban car, one mile south of Almont. Hammond's car stalled as he was crossing the rails. The impact threw the front trucks of the Interurban car from the rails and several passengers were slightly injured.

A new method of discipline for truant high school girls is being tried out at Cadillac. Seventy-five girls "skipped" one afternoon and when they appeared at school again were sentenced to report at 7:15 a. m. for an indefinite period. "It does no good to make them stay after school, they like it," said Principal E. C. Shankland, "as they escape helping with the housework."

Leslie Carlson and Walter Paulson, both 29 years old and of Greenville, were injured seriously when an automobile in which they were riding was wrecked in a head-on collision with a street car at Grand Rapids. Police said they found a bottle of liquor and a pair of crutches in the car, the latter being used by Paulson, who was recovering from injuries to his foot.

Two Lansing boys, Edward York and Virgil Jones, left Lansing on horseback with the Pacific coast as their destination. They took enough money to pay their expenses to Iowa, and expect to work their way the remainder of the trip. The boys plan to make the trip by easy stages so as to allow their horses plenty of time to rest.

The supreme court ruled that the Detroit-Windsor Ferry company must make its corporation tax return on a division of indebtedness between Canadian and American holdings. The company sought to charge all its indebtedness against the Detroit holdings, thus avoiding payment of a heavier state tax.

Chief of Police John Connors has asked Ypsilanti city officials for permission to enlarge the local police force, declaring that the work done by the department during the last year was nearly double that of 1922.

The cornerstone of Owosso's new $95,000 city hall will be laid June 15. The city commission has invited the Owosso Lodge of Masons to take charge of the ceremonies.

Grace Scott, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, of Medina, 15 miles southwest of Adrian, died from injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile. The child had just hung a May basket on a neighbor's door and stepped into the path of the car as she ran from the house.

Burglars broke open the front door of the Kessel Fashion Shop at Monroe, and took 200 silk dresses valued at $3,000.

Saginaw county, which in the last 10 months has received and used only 1.81 per cent of the antitoxin distributed free of charge to the physicians of Michigan by the state health department, is the only county from which any complaint has been heard regarding the quality of the serum. So stated Dr. R. M. Olin in commenting on Dr. H. B. McCrary's charge that it caused two deaths in Saginaw county. From July 1, 1923 to May 1, 1924, 351,304,000 units of antitoxin were distributed with Dr. McCrary's complaint the only one received.

Establishment of a motor truck freight line between Kalamazoo and Jackson within the next 60 days is under consideration by officials of the Michigan Central railroad. The plan calls for operation of a fleet of trucks daily, stopping at such intermediate points as Comstock, Galesburg, Augusta, Battle Creek, Ceresco, Marshall, Marengo, Albion and Parma. If the motorized system is established, it will supplant the present train service. It found feasible between Kalamazoo and Jackson, the plan may be extended.

The Regent Theater on Woodward avenue, near Grand Boulevard, Detroit, was robbed of about $5,000 on Monday noon May 6. A woman working on the second floor let the robbers in. They subdued her by putting a plaster over her mouth and then awaited the arrival of the manager. When he came he was forced to open the safe, then he and the ticket seller had their mouths plastered shut.

A suit for $200,000 against the Evangelical Deaconess Hospital, Detroit, was filed recently in Circuit court by William C. Greathouse, 22 years old, whose 3-week-old child, born in the hospital Sept. 5, 1923, was given to Alphonse Vennema, the father of another child, on Sept. 24, by Miss Helen Sawicki, a nurse. The Greathouse baby has never been found.

Improvements in Kalamazoo telephone service to cost approximately $149,000 are announced. The work will include the laying of several miles of underground cable. Kalamazoo has now one telephone to every five inhabitants, or more than 12,000 in all.

The Saginaw Ministerial Association adopted resolutions calling on the management of the Saginaw County Fair to eliminate all forms of gambling from the 1924 exposition. The resolutions also asked that the fair be not continued through Sunday.

Cassius Osgood, driver of a new motor truck for the Michigan Express Co. in Albion, escaped death by jumping from his seat just before a Michigan Central passenger train hit the machine at a local crossing. The truck was demolished.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senate Changes Tax Bill to Accord With the Views of the Democrats.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

IT LOOKS AS IF the Republicans must go before the country in the Presidential campaign with a tax reduction law mainly of Democratic fashioning. This is the change in the measure made by the senate after it was sustained in conference and if the bill is not vetoed by Mr. Coolidge, the Democrats then would have gained one of the big political advantages for which they have been striving.

With the aid of the radical Republican senators and the two Farmer-Laborites, the Democrats in the senate last week forced the acceptance of the Simmons substitute tax bill by the committee of the whole, in place of the Mellon plan. It fixes the surtax maximum at 40 per cent, and the normal tax rates at 2 per cent on net income up to $4,000, 4 per cent between $4,000 and $8,000, and 6 per cent above $8,000.

Under the Simmons schedule a rate of 1 per cent applies on income between $10,000 and $14,000, instead of 1 per cent between $10,000 and $12,000, as in the Mellon plan, and 1 per cent between $6,000 and $10,000, as in the present law. The rates then advance by 1 per cent in intervals of $2,000 and $4,000 until 38 per cent is reached on income in excess of $98,000 and not in excess of $100,000. A rate of 37 per cent applies between $100,000 and $200,000, 38 per cent between $200,000 and $300,000, 39 per cent between $300,000 and $500,000, and 40 per cent on that portion of income in excess of $500,000.

Next the Democratic-radical Republican combination put into the bill the Democratic graduated corporation tax and the Democratic substitute for the estate tax. The former provides that corporation earnings be subject to a normal tax of 9 per cent, and undivided earnings in excess of specified exemptions would be subject to surtaxes ranging from a fourth of 1 per cent to 40 per cent. This would be a substitute for the 14 per cent flat tax already approved by the senate in lieu of the present tax of 12 1/2 per cent on corporation earnings, and the present capital stock tax, which is to be repealed.

The estate tax is changed to an inheritance tax, and provides that on a transfer to a husband, wife, child, adopted child, parent, or grandchild of the decedent a tax of 1 per cent up to $25,000 shall apply, with a graduated tax on larger amounts up to a maximum of 36 per cent of the amount in excess of $50,000. These rates shall be increased by 25 per cent in the case of a transfer to a brother, sister, nephew, or niece of the decedent. The rates are increased by 50 per cent in the case of a transfer to any other person. Exemptions are $25,000 for husband or wife, $10,000 for a parent, child, adopted child or grandchild, and $5,000 for others.

It is said in Washington that while President Coolidge strongly disapproves of the changes in the bill made by the senate, he is not likely to veto it. He hopes one of the objectionable features will be removed in conference, especially the corporation tax substitute and the amendment providing for full publicity of tax returns.

SENATE and house conferees on the immigration bill agreed upon the feature providing complete exclusion of Japanese immigration after July 1 next, and then, yielding to the earnest arguments of President Coolidge, changed their minds and decided to recommend postponement of exclusion until March 1, 1925. This would give the State department time to negotiate with Japan for exclusion by treaty, which would mollify the citizens of the island empire considerably. The provision for exclusion as agreed on is in the following language:

"This subdivision shall not take effect as to exclusion until March 1, 1925, before which time the President

Opens Up Question as to Britain's Position

London.—The Irish Free State representative in Washington, when appointed, will have the title minister plenipotentiary, but not envoy extraordinary, according to the Daily Telegraph's political correspondent, who says the scope of his activities will be limited to economic and financial questions. Prof. Timothy A. Smiddy is being considered for appointment to the post.

Is requested to negotiate with the Japanese government in relation to the abrogation of the present agreement on this subject.

Senator Shortridge of California declared his intention of raising a point of order against the conference report when it comes to the senate on the ground that the senate conferees had exceeded their authority.

SENATOR NORRIS expressed intention of continuing his efforts to save Muscle Shoals and other valuable resources of the country for the people will win wide approval, but it isn't likely he is doing the cause any good by his vicious attacks on President Coolidge in that connection. The senate agriculture committee heard James Martin Miller, correspondent, declare again that he correctly quoted the President, in his telegram to Ford's secretary, as saying he was "trying to deliver" the Muscle Shoals project to Ford—which Mr. Coolidge has specifically denied. Norris then said some very nasty things about the Chief Executive.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE vetoed the Bureau bill increasing the pensions of veterans and widows of the Civil war, on the ground of economy, but it is asserted it will be repassed by both houses. Secretary Mellon is said to have recommended that the President veto the soldiers' bonus measure.

SENATOR COUZENS and Governor Pinchot gained a big point in their fight on Secretary Mellon when the senate passed the Jones resolution empowering its committee, to go ahead with paid counsel in the investigation of Mellon and the bureau of internal revenue. Presumably Francis J. Heney will get the job, and the inquiry will be broadened to include the conduct of the bureau in prohibition enforcement.

Operations of the Department of Justice in connection with liquor cases in Chicago were detailed to the Daugherty committee. These included the notorious Grommes & Ullrich liquor "split" and more about the conviction and pardon of Grossman. Former Judge Landis had testified vigorously concerning the Grossman matter, and last week C. W. Middlekuff, assistant attorney general, appeared before the committee and said Landis had told lies. This may develop interestingly later.

CALIFORNIA Republicans in their primary election deserted Hiram Johnson and gave their preference to Coolidge by a majority of something like 50,000. Johnson bore up under the blow bravely, declaring the result was not a tragedy. In the Democratic primaries McAdoo ran against an unopposed slate and won an impressive victory.

Indiana Republicans also decided for Coolidge as against Johnson by a huge majority. The chief interest there was in the race of Ed Jackson for the gubernatorial nomination. He was backed by the Ku Klux Klan and obtained a clear majority over all his five opponents combined. The Democrats were solid for Ralston, and Dr. Carleton McCulloch was in the lead for the gubernatorial nomination.

Mr. Coolidge has now defeated Senator Johnson in all the direct primary states except South Dakota, and veteran political beliefs of the Californian is eliminated for all time as a Presidential possibility. The President and his close advisers are now formulating a platform for presentation to the Cleveland convention, devoting themselves at present especially to planks dealing with international matters. According to one veracious correspondent the tentative program embodies these features:

1. The United States shall join the World Court if it is divorced from the League of Nations.

2. The court shall be maintained in connection with The Hague tribunal, as originally advocated by the United States.

3. An international conference on land and further naval armament limitation shall be called by President Coolidge, contingent upon the acceptance of the Dawes reparations settlement by the European powers.

Senator Lodge, in a resolution introduced in the senate, has proposed that the President be asked to call a third Hague conference of all nations for the purpose of divorcing the world court from the League of Nations, and that the United States join the court on that condition.

NEARLY a dozen political parties or groups were active in the recent elections in Germany, and the results are that in the next reichstag certain groups favoring the acceptance of the Dawes committee report probably will be able to combine and control the vote of that body. Their majority, however, will not be large, and unless some of the groups change their views, the necessary two-thirds vote cannot be mustered for a change of the constitution so that the Dawes railroad plan can be accepted. The Nationalists claim 105 seats in the reichstag, making them the largest single party, and they assert the government of Chancellor Marx must resign and the chancellorship must be given a Nationalist. The Communists will play a big part in German politics, for they polled almost four million votes and have 60 members in the reichstag. They have revived their threat of a Red revolution and already have incited numerous strikes, both in the Ruhr and in unoccupied Germany. The Nationalists are said to be combining with the People's party and with some of the Catholics, Fascists and Bavarian People's party members to form a monarchist bloc with a total of 234 votes, which is a majority. It is believed this bloc will gradually work toward a restoration of the monarchy. Its success depends on the stand taken by the Catholics, who may prefer a coalition with the Socialists.

GERMAN police not long ago raided the Berlin office of the soviet Russian commercial delegation in search for some suspect, and seized a lot of documents. Russia protested strongly against what it asserted was a violation of her extraterritorial rights and demanded satisfaction, which Berlin refused to grant. All trade relations between the two countries were suspended and Krestinsky, soviet ambassador, was summoned to Moscow.

As was predicted some time ago, the negotiations in London between the British and Russian government are not getting along well. The soviet delegates presented an extraordinary list of damage claims to offset the debt of Russia. If allowed, they would leave Britain largely in the debt of Russia. But there is no chance that the English will allow them.

ARGENTINA'S extraordinary old age pension law will be enforced with great difficulty. Both employers and workers are fighting it and last week there was a combined strike and lockout throughout the country. The workers refuse to pay their part of the pension fund, and the employers refuse to collect from their employees. However, the government is determined and the opposition is gradually weakening, and the federation of labor ordered the strike discontinued.

COAST guard cutters, trappers, fishermen and Indians are continuing the search for Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey, the lost aviators of the army's globe-circling squadron, and an offer of reward has spurred the Alaskan Islanders to renewed effort. Various reports indicated that the missing plane flew to the north coast of the islands. The other three planes of the squadron proceeded to Alaska Island and were awaiting favorable weather for the flight to Attu Island and thence to Japan.

THE general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Springfield, Mass., by a vote of 802 to 13, accepted in full the plan of unification with the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The union cannot be formally consummated for two years, but apparently the breach which has existed since 1844 is now healed. The bishops of the Church South will vote for the unification and the question will then be submitted to all annual conferences of both church organizations.

PEACE in Honduras was seemingly assured when on Monday the warring factions and representatives of the other Central American governments signed a treaty on board a United States cruiser. A temporary president of Honduras was selected pending new elections.

pointment of the Canadian representative was approved it was agreed that he should remain in permanent contact with the British embassy, but no suggestion is made as to what status the Free State minister will have in this respect. If it becomes a practice for the dominions to appoint their own representatives abroad with the right of negotiating directly with foreign states, the whole question of the position and right of the imperial government and its relations to the dominions must be clearly reconsidered.

LEAP YEAR VICTIM MARTYR TO TRUTH

Once I was an excellent liar. I could lie as easily as anybody. My lies were always plausible, quick, ready and well received. I was happy, content and single. But all this is changed now. I met a girl who took what she said was only a friendly interest in me. She asked me to give up lying. She pleaded with me so prettily and with such evident desire to make me a perfect expounder of truth that I promised her I would lie no more. Having given my promise I kept it. One day the girl came to me with downcast face, she glanced at me shyly from beneath half-closed lids. A little blush played about her dimpled cheeks. She told me she was going to be married.

I extended my hand. I congratulated her, wholeheartedly and truthfully. I was glad. I told her I would give her anything she wanted for a wedding gift. "You have only to speak," I said, "and it is yours!" "Remember," she said, "nothing but the truth!" "The truth always," I replied. "Name the wedding gift and it is yours." Shyly her little hand sought mine. "You!" she whispered. "You!" I exclaimed. "I never thought of that! But what could I do?—W. M. Sanford in Judge.

TRIM, SIMPLE DAY-FROCKS; DISTINCTIVE STYLES IN COATS

STARTING out with the charm of simplicity the trim day-frock has added many fascinations by invading all the fields of fabrics. It is informal and will prove everybody's friend this summer, since it is attractively made of cotton, linen, wool, silk and silk fiber stuffs, and therefore makes a place for itself morning, noon and evening. French flannel, wool and silk crepes and fiber silks have placed it in the category of street and sports clothes.

Nearly all day-frocks are cut on the lines of the pretty model pictured, and adaptable coats for general wear, which the spring season brought in such variety of excellent designs, we have late arrivals to consider in dressy coats for midsummer.

Fashion's early edict, proclaiming simplicity as the keynote of the season's styles, has not been rescinded. A fine example of this year's approved designing appears at the right of the two coats pictured here. In this model, for general wear, a beige twill garment has no sort of decoration except a few rows of machine stitching on the sleeves and across the front.

which is adapted to all kinds of fabrics and is so simple that it hardly needs description. By way of decoration it has parallel rows of tucks put in with beautiful accuracy indicating the "shirt-front" vogue and finishing the turn-back cuffs and ends of the attached scarf. This is an ideal model for flannel, crepe de chine, linen or other silk.

Lace yokes and inserted panels of the same lace extending from yoke to hem are used with plain satin and with foulard in frocks that are equal to any afternoon occasion. Long lines are accented by buttons and simulated

This stitching is done with such accuracy and perfection that they guarantee the craftsmanship of the designer, who might have added much similar stitching, but did not. Therefore attention is centered on the artistry of beautiful lines and the becomingness of the model.

At the left of the picture an exponent of the black-and-white vogue in coats shows lines that are straight and slim. Many such coats are of crepe marocain and the white applique may be of fine suede or of a wool fabric that simulates it, but other materials are used for making buttonholes that follow one another from head to foot. Variety and interest are added to twill dresses by pipings of silk in pretty contrasting colors.

The novelty weaves in sports silks need almost no adornment and confine themselves to these pipings and a few buttons. Barred flannels also invite pipings of plain silk or flannel in the color of the bar. Striped wash silks, showing a colored stripe on a white ground, manipulate their stripes to make themselves interesting, using bands with stripes running in a different direction from those on the dress.

When using crepes designers are given to narrow or wide tucks that present an entire tucked surface, or groups of tucks from top to bottom, or else they turn to the narrow side or box-pleat to vary their creations.

The present season is going to make a record for coats of much distinction. Besides the simple, graceful them. Very handsome models in black and white are made of heavy black crepe and entirely covered with white silk embroidery done in the manner of embroidery on Spanish shawls. White ermine is used for collars and sometimes in bandings on a majority of these coats, but white fox is not ignored; a collar of it is shown on the coat pictured.

It would be playing Hamlet with the prince left out to fail to speak of sports and semi-sports coats which many women elect to wear almost everywhere. In these there is a great variety of fabrics in indistinct plaids, and many novel patterns in stripes and checks.

Coat to Match Frock

The fashion of having a coat to match a frock is in a way rather an economical one, especially if both are of heavy crepe or in black satin, which is so smart this season. The long lines of the coat and its flattering touches of fur at neck and sleeves make it an appropriate garment to wear on many occasions over other dresses. Particularly attractive are coats of heavy black satin trimmed with fine white braiding or dull silver galloon.

The blouse—perhaps it is an echo of the Chinese vogue—does not end nowadays till it reaches the knees. It is long and straight and slashed up the sides. It is also lightly embroidered.

Spotted Fur on Wraps

Spotted fur is being used in noticeable quantities on spring frocks and wraps. Not all of it is real leopard, though bits of this are highly fashionable.

By Mary Graham Bonner

RED ADMIRALS

"If you have ever thought that the Butterflies had a Navy you are very much mistaken," said the Red Admiral.

"We may have rather navy-like names, if that is the way I should speak of them, but we haven't any Navy at all."

"Perhaps I should say we haven't ranks as they have in the Navy."

"For example, there is no Lieutenant and no Captain and no Commander and no Seamen at all."

"Therefore we have no Navy. Besides, we haven't any ships and we don't go on the water. So you see we don't belong to a Navy and a Navy doesn't belong to us."

"We are also called Nettle Butterflies. I hope I made it clear from the start that we are butterflies. I think I did."

"But I shall now, at any rate. Yes, we are Butterflies."

"We have little hairs which scratch and annoy the enemies who might otherwise harm us. That is why we are often called Nettle Butterflies."

"Then we have the name of Red Admirals because we wear fine reddish suits."

"When we get a little older we become rather worn-looking, and so you will notice some of us and our clothes will look shabby by you."

"But when we are young we spruce up and look very fine indeed."

"Another reason for our name of Nettle Butterflies is because we are born where there are nettles. Our little homes are there."

"And there we are able to make our first nest and fix the leaf about us so that we are protected from enemies in this way, too, and also from bad weather. We find plenty to eat, as well, in the bits from the buds at which we nibble."

"Then we change our skins and move to a larger leaf home and eat and rest and make ourselves a little hanging tent, which we find most comfortable."

"I, myself, slept in the Chrysalis state all through the winter."

"But you will find throughout the summer more of the members of our family appearing."

"Wherever you find nettles you are apt to find us and, in fact, we're about a good deal."

"Of course we have enemies who destroy us and we don't always get the better of many a little insect nuisance."

"But here I am, enjoying the sunshine, telling my story, and what more can a butterfly want?"

"Of course I've eaten well and rested well and grown strong and healthy—all because of my own cleverness."

"Possibly that sounds conceited. I didn't mean it to sound that way."

"I really meant that it was all because of the cleverness of the first Red Admiral who gave the first lesson and all the other lessons, which were handed down from one brood of Red Admirals to the next."

"We change homes a bit—three nests is usually the number; and of course we moult."

"It is after we moult each time that we get a new nest."

"We feel fresh and newly dressed and we want a new home to match our selves."

"People get new things to wear and stay in their old homes. But it is different with us, quite different," Red Admiral ended.

"Ha Ha"

This laughing game is sure to be a merry one. A circle is formed and one child starts with the word "ha." The second says "ha ha," the third "ha, ha, ha," and so on, each taking his turn and adding one more "ha" than his neighbor. The "ha ha's" must be said without laughing, which is hard work, and before the circle has been gone once around almost all are laughing. As each one laughs he drops out of the game, and sometimes only two are left to carry on the contest.

Next to the Head

Man—Well, Thomas, how are you making it at school?
Boy—Pretty good; I'm up next to the head of the class.

Man—That's fine! How many are in your class?
Boy—Two of us.

Johnny's Latest Joke

Mother (to youngest who reached for something at the table)—Why did you reach 'way across the table like that? Haven't you got a tongue?
Johnny—Yes, but it would not reach so far.

A Great Neighborhood

My son had lived in quiet surroundings and played a great deal with little girls. We moved into a new neighborhood, made up of real boys of all ages. One day son rushed into the house and exclaimed: "Oh, mother! This is the greatest neighborhood. We just fuss and fight all the time."

MARRIED TWELVE YEARS BEFORE BABY CAME

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them, but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the Iowa papers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 66 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine."—Mrs. JON NOVAK, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

P. D. Q., Pesky Devils Quietus, is the name of the new chemical that actually ends the bug family. Bed Bugs, Roaches, Ants and Fleas, as P. D. Your druggist has it or he can get it for you. Mailed prepaid upon receipt of price. The Owl Chemical Works, Terra Haute, Ind.

THE DEMOCRATIC SITUATION.

Interest this week in Washington has turned to the democratic situation. Politicians are agreed that the sudden death of Charles F. Murphy, boss of Tammany Hall, has completely changed the political map. The absence of Murphy from the counsel table of the democratic convention makes for a new deal all around, but the Tammany influence will be as strong as ever. It is known here that had Murphy lived he would have had the support of Brennan and Taggart for his candidate, for while the question of religion had come up they felt sure enough of Al Smith's ability as a vote getter to disregard the matter of church relations.

With only Brennan and Taggart remaining and the solid South is practically a state of revolt it is probable that whether or not the political bosses of Illinois and Indiana will be able to put over Smith or any other candidate who bears their trade mark, it may mark the end of the bosses as factors in dictating the nomination of the democratic standard bearer.

If Smith does not receive the nomination his friends in New York, Illinois and other sections of the country will have anything but a kindly feeling for the section of the country that brought about his defeat; if on the other hand Smith does get the necessary two-thirds vote, then the South will cut him.

PRESS CLIPPINGS.

Milwaukee Sentinel—The Senate, it will be remembered, was highly indignant when the President took it to task for its performances, but it may be noticed that considerable work has been accomplished by that august body since it was called down.

Troy Times—Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, anarchists, are fighting the communists in Europe. That shows progress, for they were fighting everything else in America. They are said to be homesick. The sentiment is not reciprocated.

Washington Post—"If there is one thing that is pre-eminent in America," says President Coolidge, "it is a disposition to follow the truth." That's the reason the public no longer follows the Senate investigations.

Toledo Blade—Up-to-date all senator Magnus Johnson has done to help the farmers was to win second place in a milking contest in which there were only two entries.

Chicago Tribune—Mr. McAdoo, who capitalized his family, political, and personal affiliations to get oily money, is supposed to be a good candidate for President.

Fort Wayne Sentinel—Grove Bergdoll hasn't come back yet. He must be waiting to see whether we get into a scrap with Japan.

Boston Transcript—Liberty bonds are above par. Another indication of the enduring strength of American institutions.

New York Herald-Tribune—Congress has proved once for all that investigation is the thief of Time.

Portland Oregonian—Governor Al Smith ran well in Wisconsin. He would. So does a spigot.

WEeping AND WAiling.

In Grayling there is "weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth," all because a smooth individual invaded the environs of the city a short time ago and persuaded a lot of the town boys to invest their hard earned shekels in a new brand of grape juice.

According to the tale unfolded by that smooth fakir from the city they had only to put a little water with the grape juice and let it stand ten days, when it would develop a kick like an army mule.

When the grape juice arrived the boys proceeded to follow directions, and it is said the ten days were the longest that were ever recorded in this locality. At the expiration of the time limit they uncorked their purchases and found they had just what they bot—a little grape juice and a lot of water. As for a kick, a jack rabbit would be ferocious in comparison to the one the beverage developed.

THE TRUTH IS OUT AT LAST.

An up-state editor, just in receipt of a case of truth serum on advertising account, must have taken an overdose of the stuff last week, judging from the following items taken at random from the local columns of his paper:

John Coyle, our grocerman, is doing poor business. His store is dirty and dusty. How can he do much?

The Reverend Sty preached last Sunday night on charity. The sermon was punk.

Dave Canky died at his home here Tuesday. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whiskey killed him.

LOCAL NEWS

H. W. Wolf of Chicago is in the city for a few days.

Mark Brown of Saginaw and a party of friends enjoyed a sojourn at their club on the AuSable the fore part of last week. Mr. Brown, formerly came through Grayling representing the Hazeltine, Perkins Drug Co., and during his trips through here became a lover of the northern streams.

John B. Redhead and son Jack and wife of South Bend, Ind. were in the city Saturday of last week. They expect to remain at their home down the river until some time in July. They have been employed by the Studebaker company in South Bend, but were among 5000 men who were laid off until such time that their new models are ready for manufacture.

Lavina, the 6 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Deckrow of Bay City is at Mercy Hospital in that city, as the result of being run down by an automobile near her home, Sunday May 4th. The automobile that struck the little girl was being driven recklessly and at a high rate of speed, on the wrong side of the street. It caught the little girl and pinned her between the fender of the car and a fire hydrant. Her jaw bone was broken in two places and her collar bone broken and at first little hopes were held for her recovery, but she is getting along nicely now. P. R. Deckrow was called to that city owing to the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McInnis of Detroit are spending a couple of weeks here visiting the latter's mother Mrs. O. Milnes and other relatives.

Mrs. Mary Cameron, mother of Mrs. Charles McCullough is visiting her daughter Mrs. P. J. McKian of Wolverine, leaving Saturday afternoon.

Mahoney and the second to Mrs. Victor Smith. Mrs. Earl Dawson and Mrs. James Bowen were guests of the club, the former winning the guest's prize. Lovely refreshments were served by Mrs. Havens later in the afternoon.

Mrs. T. Klingensmith and family have gone to Chicago, to reside, Mr. Klingensmith and son Earl having secured positions in that city. The family have resided in Grayling for about five years during which time they have made many warm friends who regret their departure from our city. Kinley and Vernon Klingensmith, playing trap drums and banjo, respectively, are playing with Schram's orchestra, who have been winning much favor on the fine music they have rendered for the various social affairs in this city. They expect to remain in Grayling for the summer, and continue playing with the orchestra.

The Grayling Creamery is constantly adding larger and better apparatus to their equipment in order to keep up with the expansion of their business. The latest venture is a new butter churn, which is now installed and is grinding out the very highest grade of creamery butter. The new churn has a capacity for churning 800 pounds of butter at one time, about four times the capacity of the churn formerly used there. Mr. Klein says that it is just as cheap to churn an 800 pound batch of butter in the new churn as it was to churn one of 150 pounds in the former churn. He also says that his butter and ice cream business is growing to beat the band. He is supplying nearly every user of cream in Grayling and has many regular ice cream customers in nearby towns.

Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Palmer have sold their home on Peninsular avenue to Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Pool and will move to Pasadena, California, just as soon as they can get their household goods packed for shipment. The transaction was made on Tuesday of this week. Dr. and Mrs. Palmer spent the winter of 1922-23 in Pasadena and fell quite in love with the climate and wonderful flowers and feel that they can be more comfortable there than in Michigan. Altho in their eighties they are looking forward to many more years of happiness together. There are hundreds of our citizens who will be very sorry indeed to have Dr. and Mrs. Palmer leave Grayling. Both have been useful citizens, more than contributing their share to the progress of the community. Their sterling characters, high ideals and christian spirits have made them an ideal couple. It would require volumes to tell about the great things they have done in their lives. We are sure that hundreds of readers of the AVALANCHE will join us in wishing them many more years of sweet companionship together.

Save money and buy here. Owing to the lack of room we will sell out all our fishing tackle with 25 per cent discount. Central Drug Store.

MAPLE FOREST NEWS.

Everybody is happy and busy getting in the spring crops as the weather is getting fine.

The ladies are busy house cleaning and taking care of the little chickens especially the ones hatched by the wood hen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Penttilin have as their guest, his sister Mrs. Bessie Turner of Kansas City, Kansas.

John Malco, has Mr. and Mrs. Bert Justin, working for him this summer.

Mrs. Mary Robertson, who has been housekeeper for Mr. Malco for the past four years, has gone to Detroit for the summer.

The Feldhauser Brothers have finished saving lumber for James Malatt, and brought their engine home in the rain so as not to set any fires. Good boys.

There was a dance at the town hall last Saturday night and by the looks of things all must have been feeling pretty good. The windows were broken, seats thrown out doors and moonshine bottles lying everywhere. It sure is a disgrace to Maple Forest, and the rest of the county to have such works going on. One would think people would leave their moonshine at home, for there is nothing gained and there should be steps taken to put a stop to it.

There will be a Maple Forest telephone meeting at the Edmond's school house, Friday night, May 16, at 7 o'clock. All schoolers please be present as it is very important.

Mrs. Wm. G. Feldhauser had a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Clark Yost, and they report they are having fine success selling Witwer batteries.

We are very sorry to hear that our County Agent R. D. Bailey has had to go to the hospital, but hope he will soon be with us again, and we are sure he will be, for under the hands of our skillful doctors and good nurses, he will soon be all O. K. again. He is sure a faithful worker and has done a wonderful lot of good for Crawford County.

We hope that the people who have dear ones laid away in the Maple Forest cemetery will take a little pride and fix up their lots this year. They have no excuse now, as the cattle cannot get in, as there is a nice woven wire fence and a good gate. It sure needs cleaning up. Please try and make it the best looking cemetery in Crawford County. N. I. F.

It being asked how railroad crossing accidents can be prevented such inquirers are respectfully informed that they can be avoided by not crossing the tracks ahead of a train.

FUSSED.

One of our preacher friends tells us that he never was much embarrassed, but he remembers a man who was. He was a bridegroom and at the wedding breakfast when the company vociferously demanded he make a speech, he arose, blushing, stammering, placed his hand on his wife's shoulder and said: "This thing has been forced on me."

MORE ACQUAINTANCES.

BOTHERSOME.

Maybe you've heard of the Clinton county rounder who was up in a city court after a mule party. He insisted he hadn't been drunk. "Well, the officer says you were trying to climb a lamp post," said the judge. "If you weren't drunk, what were you trying to do that for?" "Well," the fellow explained, "I was just tryin' to get away from a couple of pink crocodiles that had been follerin' me around all day. They sort of got on my nerves."

The Difference

"Can any little boy or girl tell me," said the teacher, "what is the difference between a stole and a cynic?"
The class was silent. Finally a hand was raised tremulously. "Well?" inquired the teacher.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

RADIO STATION IS USEFUL TO LEGION

Official use of the radio as a means of communication with American Legion members was forecast almost a year ago, but the organization has just begun this means of disseminating Legion news and views to its membership and to the general public.

On March 30, National Commander John R. Quinn formally opened Legion use of the radio at station WTAS, Elgin, Ill., as official station for the Legion. The station is owned by Charles E. Erbstein, a Chicago attorney, and is located at his summer home. Broadcasting is done on a 288 meter wave length, which permits it to be heard in all sections of the country. Commander Quinn spoke on the policies of the Legion, enunciating the accomplishments of the organization for the disabled, its plans for welfare of children orphaned by the World war and its fight against radicalism. Word was received by telegraph from 25 states that the Legion message had been heard through the air.

The program is to be continued on each Sunday afternoon and on Tuesday nights. On these occasions, some one of the Legion's orators will speak on certain phases of Legion activity and musical programs furnished by Legion vocalists, glee clubs, instrumentalists, orchestras, and bands will be heard.

Mr. Erbstein's interest in the treatment and care of the disabled, and his feeling toward success of the Legion's aims are responsible for the preferring of his station. It successfully opens a way of communication for the Legion that will be unlimited, and it is not impossible that the organization will soon own and operate its own station from national headquarters.

To Probe Cases of Men in Penal Institutions

Among recent departments of the American Legion to begin surveys of penal institutions in their states, with a view of segregation of mentally unbalanced from ordinary criminals, are Massachusetts and Indiana.

The survey was authorized by the national organization following disclosures in Wisconsin that a large percent of ex-service men confined in the penitentiaries were sufferers from mental derangement, and were confined in ordinary institutions, not receiving treatment for this disability.

This survey was instigated by Governor Blaine of Wisconsin on suggestion of F. Ryan Duffy, now national vice commander of the Legion, and called national attention to the problem. Immediately surveys under direction of the Legion were started in half a dozen states, with the result that many former service men are now receiving treatment for some disability incurred in war.

In Massachusetts where the survey was ordered by Department Commander Clarence R. Edwards, it has been determined that there are 400 veterans now at Deer Island, a number of whom may be transferred to some institution for treatment. Department Commander A. E. Ball of Indiana has arranged to make the survey in his state one of the most comprehensive yet attempted, as the case of every ex-service man found in prison will be reviewed in attempts to settle claims and pay adjustments.

Intensive Treatment of Civic Questions

A bureau to provide intensive treatment of the civic and community questions affecting the American Legion has been made a part of the activities of national headquarters of the organization.

The work will be under direct charge of the Americanism commission of the Legion, and will immediately begin extension of the work among the 11,000 posts and 7,000 units of the organization scattered throughout the nation and in several foreign countries.

Aid and direction will be given posts in development of their towns and cities, of playground and recreational work, wider use of the schools as community centers, formation of boy and girl scout troops, and in every other constructive activity for community improvement. This work was authorized by an addition to the Americanism program passed at the San Francisco convention of the organization.

"Your Post and Your Town" is the title of a booklet which will be issued by the Americanism commission, and which is designed, not as a manual of procedure, but as examples of the successes and failures of other Legion groups.

Co-operation of the Playground and Recreation Association of America and Community Service, Inc., has been accorded the Legion in this work.

TEMPERAMENT OFTEN BEATS SPORT SKILL

Hoppe, Sarazen and Hagen Are Easily Affected.

The difference in results obtained by competitive temperament and technical brilliance always affords a curious and a fascinating study for those interested in sport. The most recent example of this difference was the Hoppe-Horemans match for the world's championship at 18.2 ballline billiards. Horemans, according to those who know the correct form in billiards, is the most brilliant shot maker in the world. In the easy and friendly atmosphere of a practice room the Belgian can deliver amazing runs. His work before the recent match with Hoppe was so remarkable that many billiard authorities picked him to win against Hoppe. They based their predictions partly on Horemans' undoubted technical brilliance and partly on the knowledge that Hoppe has slipped in a technical sense within the past few years.

Horemans had his chance on the opening night of the match, but he failed to take it. Hoppe was bad that night, so bad that reports of the match accused him of playing "amateur billiards."

The champion left the door open, but Horemans wouldn't walk in. He was palpably nervous. He saw before him the chance to win a world's championship and the vision unsettled his nerves.

The Belgian was despondent over his showing and was expressing his despondency with true Latin intensity.

"I cannot understand how I played so badly," he said. "I couldn't do anything. Hoppe was very bad and yet I couldn't take advantage of him. I cannot understand it, why I was so bad."

The Belgian's friends tried to cheer him up. They assured him that Hoppe had a lead of only 70 points, that such a lead was nothing to a man as brilliant as Horemans. They told him that he could step out in front in the last two blocks, but the Belgian could think of nothing but his unfortunate showing in the first block. Instead of looking forward to the deeds he might perform, he was looking backward to the mistakes he had made.

Winning the second block by a score of 500 to 16 and getting off to a run of 228 at the opening of the third block, Hoppe had an almost unbeatable lead. And then a curious thing happened. Horemans, realizing that he couldn't win, started to play billiards for the first time during the tournament. He seemed almost indifferent, but he was relaxed and playing for points rather than for a world's championship. The result was brilliant shooting, billiards that would have won for him had he been able to get going that way at the beginning of the match.

Hoppe, Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, all champions, are as easily affected as was Horemans.

Couldn't Let Him Go

The honeymoon had not yet begun
to wane when the young bride
answered the telephone fairly early one morning. She recognized the voice as that of the PEK girl down at the office,
a snippy young blonde person for whom she had no use whatever, being morally certain that she would vamp
her husband at the first opportunity.

"Hello! Is this Mr. Smith's residence?"
"Yes."
"Is Mr. Smith there?"
"Yes."
"Let me have him, please."
"Huh! I'll do nothing of the kind!
I haven't had him very long myself,
and what's more, I have decided that he is to be my permanent husband!"

A Tale of the Flatwoods

CHAPTER XVIII.—Continued.

There followed the subdued shuffle
of feet; the guarded scrape of a match;
the flicker of a tarry candle. A dim light fell through the open door in a long splash of yellow across the sitting room and the knob of the safe was softly turned. By some supersense that marvelously functions at such a moment, he knew when the door opened. Across the silence came the subdued crinkle of paper. The ripe instant had come.

Pushing the curtains aside, he left the closet. A board in the floor
creaked as his weight came upon it.
He stood perfectly still until the rattle
of the paper told him the creaking
board had not betrayed him; worked his way around the wall and peered
past the door-jamb.

Two men were crouched by a shaded
candle in front of the massive safe;

Two Men Were Crouched by a Shaded
Candle in Front of the Massive Safe.

on the floor lay several bundles of money and a number of loose bills.

Even in the dim light there was no
mistaking them. That powerful figure with the swart face could be but one man in the world—Black Bogus. The pointed beard, the frock coat and neck
stock, the tall hat on the floor, disclosed with equal positiveness the far more dangerous identity of the other—
the formidable and mysterious man who called himself Caleb Hopkins—the third man of the mountain girl's warning.

Although the man creeping around
the door-jamb made far less sound
than the rattle of the money, yet Black Bogus caught the alarm, whirled on the instant, his hand at his hip.

Fate figures in split fractions at such
a time—and the odds were two to one,
with probably a third somewhere outside. The half haunting resemblance that had so puzzled the woodsman
never seemed stronger than at that dangerous instant, but it meant death
to falter. There was a bright flash in the candle-light; Black Bogus, a hideous grimace upon his truculent face,
seemed to shrink together; the revolver
that he had not had time to raise fell from his fingers; he pitched forward upon his face; lay still.

Before he struck the floor, almost before the bullet that finished forever his wild career had found its mark, Jack whirled his weapon upon the other man. His head had been deep in the safe—a fact that probably saved the woodsman's life. Like a viper out of his coil, the head flew out of the safe,
and with it—the ivory-handled six-gun.

But the split fraction of the instant
had lost him the advantage. His weapon had hardly left its holster before it was shot out of his hand—
pieces of the ivory butt flew about the room, and blood streamed from the shattered fingers that held it.

But Hopkins was not a coward. That,
at least, could not be set down against him. Instead of leaping for the still open window, he sprang straight at Jack Warhope. The woodsman could have shot him down; instead, he jammed the revolver back into its holster and met the oncoming rush.

It was a battle the like of which the Flatwoods had never seen. No two such men can clash and come through unscathed. But it is doubtful if Hopkins at his best could have matched
the tremendous strength and quickness and skill of the big woodsman. With his right hand shattered by the bullet,
it soon became apparent that, for all
the wild fury of his onset, he was fighting a losing battle. He realized it, and the despair bereft him of his caution.
The woodsman realized it, too, kept his head, tightened his guard and watched
for the opening that he knew was bound to come.

It came sooner than he thought.
Hopkins, desperate and breathing
thick, swung at the woodsman's head,
but missed. The attempt had for the instant exposed his stomach, and the woodsman took advantage of it. The blow weakened Hopkins; he tottered,
gasped, instinctively lowered his guard.
Like lightning the woodsman swung
his terrific right to the point of the bearded jaw, and Hopkins went down
like a beef under the mallet.

But Loge Belden was still unaccounted for, a circumstance the woodsman
had not forgotten, that had puzzled him no little. Bruised and panting himself, he dragged Hopkins back of the safe out of range of the window—
as it chanced, near the candle on the floor—and stood over him.

His heavy mass of black hair had fallen across his brow—amongst the black, one lock of glaring red. The woodsman snatched up the candle; bent closer and covered the lower part of the bearded face with his hand.

"My God!" he muttered—"the red lock—it's Ken."

He set the candle down; straightened; stood staring at the prostrate
figure on the floor, for the moment
swept beyond his habitual calm and poise. The transformation that the one lock of red wrought on the bearded
face was unbelievable—cruel; sinister; brutal—as if the face of Red Collin, the old sea pirate, had sprung
out of a long dead past.

The fallen man stirred, rattled his heels on the floor, moved his arms, sat up and stared about him. Suddenly aware of the hard eyes upon him, he hastily raised a hand and hastily brushed the mass of hair back into place.

"It ain't no use, Ken," came from the other side of the candle, "I seen
it."

The man on the floor scrambled to his feet; glanced toward the window,
at the candle within reach of his foot,
as if meditating some desperate move;
frowned at the shattered fingers; stiffened, leaned against the safe door.

"Well—?"

The old arrogant haughtiness that
the woodsman remembered so well—
that used to awe him, dominate him—
was in the expressive monosyllable.
But it didn't awe him now—it rasped
him; crawled up through his blood and struck a spark from his eyes. He was a long time answering; when he did, it was with another question.

"What have y'u got t' say why I
oughtn't t' hand y'u over t' Jerry Brown?"

"Not a d—n thing, though I'd rather be plinched anywhere else in the world than here—a shade of the haughtiness left his tones—"on account of—Sis."

The big woodsman winced—which
the other, with his quick wits, just then strung to keenest pitch, doubtless noticed.

"Live while y'u may; t' h—n I when y'u must—It's a game of chance anyhow, with the odds on the man with the quickest fingers. I've seen twenty-seven years of it—a game not worth
the candle."

"It is if y'u play it square,"

"Square," the other snarled, "a word
the devil invented t' throw men off guard. There ain't any such word."

He hesitated, a softer light flitted
across his expressive face—"except—"
in the Flatwoods.

The woodsman caught the transient softer light—an expression that in other days used so to win him.

"Then why not come back t' the Flatwoods—?"

The other glanced down at the
money on the floor; half lifted his face
and covertly studied the man before him.

"Texie—she still b'lieves in y'u, and I ain't quite give up b'lievin' in y'
myself. You was careful t' git—her—"

His eyes were again drawn irresistibly toward the concealed house-boat—
"out of danger t'night, and I low y'u never aimed t' hurt Pap Simon and y'u ain't takin' away nothin' but what y'u brought. It would kill—her, if she knewed it was you that done—his—"

He swept his hand toward the scattered money, the open safe, the dead
rubber, glanced in the direction of the churchyard, and worse. You could go
"way—a while, and then come—back."

He paused; his eyes hardened. "But
the next time y'u've got t' come—
clean."

The eyes of the other turned in every direction except toward the man addressing him. A moment of silence fell.

"Where's Belden?" Jack suddenly
asked.

The other started; glanced at the open window—a bit uneasily, as it might have seemed.

"He didn't show up, that's all I know."

"Did they know who y'u—are?"

The man addressed glanced down at the huddled body on the floor; frowned
in the direction of Eagle hollow.

"Cattle like them—h—n!"

The woodsman frowned at the words, but apparently decided to pass
them over.

"Then—nobody needs t' know." He dropped a half-opened hand toward the body of the fallen robber. "He's enough t' satisfy Jerry Brown, and one
more mark ag'in' 'im won't make no difference t' Black Bogus now."

Still watching the window, as well as the man leaning on the door of the safe, he picked up the ruins of the ivory-handled six-gun—being careful to hunt the pieces that had scattered about the room—and hunted them all
into the pocket of his darning blouse;
lifted the tall hat from the floor and
held it forth; motioned toward the open window.

The other took the hat; put it on

with curious deliberation; stared hard
at the scattered money; stepped
around the body of his dead associate;
crossed the floor and, closely followed by the woodsman, who still watched him narrowly, crawled through the window and stood in apparent stoid-ness, as if waiting to be told what to
do next.

The woodsman, no little rankled
that his offered clemency—an offer
that had cost him much to make—had been received with cold, even haughty
indifference, dropped to the ground
behind him and stood a moment stoid-
ness, as if waiting to be told what to
do next.

"I'm givin' y'u time to warn Loge Belden off and take t' the woods—if y'u're quick. When I think the time's up, I'm aamin' t' fire off Pap Simon's shotgun and rouse the village. This house will be put under guard t'night,
and t'morrow all that money will be
look t' the city and put in the bank,
where it ought t' be'n long ago"—a thought of the mountain girl crying
under the window the night before crossed his mind, and his voice grew crisp and cold—"and if y'u never come back, w'y, that'll be soon enough
f'r me; but if y'u do, y'u've got t' come
clean."

A black scowl swept the bearded
face of the other; his eyes glared dangerously. Warhope—the bound boy—
that he had committed the blunder of so vastly underrating! He half turned,
a muttered oath on his lips; but mastered the outburst, and, with the air
of a man who bowed to circumstances,
strode across the yard, nursing his shattered hand and fumbling the elaborate frock coat about him.

All unknown to the woodsman there
lay concealed in that same frock coat
another weapon—a small single-shot
pistol of heavy caliber that thugs of the underworld often carried, dandy
at close range but inaccurate at a distance—a weapon that the men of the woods knew nothing about. At the brink of the yard, just where it dipped
to the little park, he suddenly snatched
it forth; whirled and fired.

Even with his right hand shattered
and having to shoot with his left, with almost no light at all, the shot disclosed what he could have done with a real gun—the bullet scorched the woodsman's blouse and passed between his left arm and his side. The man crouched at the brink of the yard
watched the success of the shot—his last desperate attempt—knew that it failed; swore, and dashed away up the path that led into the jaws of Eagle hollow.

It all occurred in the flick of an instant. Amazed at the treachery, the woodsman sprang out of the dim square of candle-light that fell through the window. He snatched out his revolver and was just straining a step in pursuit when, from somewhere in the yard behind him, there came a low cry—

his name—so faint as to leave a doubt that he had heard. It froze him into a listening statue.

It came again—a woman's cry—
borne upon the breath of the night.
He would have known that voice
among shouting thousands. He turned and bounded down the yard toward the gate.

Up from the gate she came, half-running, half-reeling, but before he could reach her she stopped, stood for a moment groping with her hands,
drooped forward and fell with her face
upon the grass.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best— Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine.
A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years
and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify.
No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr.
Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact,
so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver
and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid
which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr.
Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and
enclose ten cents; also mention this paper.
Large and medium size bottles for sale
at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Question of Royalty

There wasn't much royalty left to discuss, but the teacher thought it sufficient to warrant some explanation. So she told the children about the law of succession, and how the first born son always succeeded to the throne.

Suddenly a little fellow waved his hand. "Please, teacher," he asked, "if
the first one happened to be twins,

stimulant to the kidneys, and I find them free from all habit-forming drugs. I am certain that they are valuable for the purpose intended when taken according to directions. I fol-

To Cut Celluloid

Anyone who has tried to cut sheet
celluloid knows that it is not as easy
as it looks, says Popular Science

the like, and part the celluloid by bending it sharply along the scratch.
This trick is particularly useful when curved or irregular shapes must be cut.

GOITER is caused by a deficiency of Iodine in the Thyroid Gland.
A perfectly healthy Thyroid Gland contains, naturally, between 0.5

thyroid enlargement begins.

LIVESTOCK LEGUMES LIMESTONE MEAN PROFITS IN FARMING

Money-Making Idea Number 25.
Sow an acre of carrots, an acre of mangles, and an acre of ruta bagas, and feed bigger and better than ever this winter.

Use this money-making idea.

Fine Improvement.

Theodore Leslie has greatly improved the appearance of his neat farm by rebuilding the fence on the entire frontage, using neat, peeled oaken posts which are neatly sawed off on top, and set in a very straight row.

Mr. Leslie says that he cut, peeled and set these posts in odd times, which is what any other farmer could do.

His work has certainly made a splendid improvement on the farm.

Let's Remember.

Let's all remember that most farms are passed by many autos. People in these autos are constantly sizing up the farms they pass.

A little work, a little picking up, a little raking up, a little effort at neatness, and how much better the place looks. How much more complimentary the remarks of those who pass! How much better the man and his family feel! I am convinced that efforts by the man to have things neat and clean-cut so affect the man that he accomplishes more, and works to better advantage with his crops and stock.

Going to Feed It All Summer.

The little cooperative association of farmers has sold over thirty-three thousand pounds of the famous Milk-maker feed since the first of last December.

At last we are getting down to real dairy feeding, the thing that will bring the steady, dependable, satisfying income to farmers, by using this milk-maker.

When we add alfalfa, then "we are really logging."

Most of the users of milk-maker state that they plan to feed it all summer, which certainly is a wise thing to do. It's worth all it costs simply to help call the cows home in summer.

Toast and Tea.

You might just as well expect a man to work hard all day in the woods on toast and tea as to say that bran is as good for cows as milk-maker. Milk-maker contains twelve ingredients, the names and amounts being plainly printed on the blue tag on each bag. It is an exactly properly balanced ration, which bran is not. Of course bran is better than nothing. Milk-maker has the body and substance in it.

Silo a Sign of Prosperity.

Who in Crawford County will build a silo this summer? There are 500,000 silos in the United States. That's half a million.

Pays for Itself in One Year.

I have often heard N. P. Hull, one of Michigan's prominent dairymen say: "A silo intelligently used, will pay for itself in one year. I believe he is right."

There is an enormous loss in the feeding value of corn stalks that stand out. The right place for corn in this climate is in a silo.

Give 'Em a Bath.

Better give your seed potatoes a bath for thirty minutes in a solution made by dissolving four (4) ounces of Corrosive Sublimite in thirty (30) gallons of water.

No one wants scabby potatoes.

This bath prevents scab, and prevents the work of two other diseases that cause the tops to die too soon and keep the potatoes from developing big enough to sell.

Treatment of seed potatoes is one of the little marks of a good farmer. Soak potatoes before they are cut. Soak whole potatoes.

Amount of Potato Seed to the Acre.

"In my opinion," says Dr. Wm. Stuart, potato specialist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, "one should plant from 15 to 20 bushels, or more, per acre on land that has been well prepared, that is well supplied with organic matter and available plant food, and naturally possesses a good moisture supply. On such land the planting from 8 to 12 bushels of seed per acre is short of criminal, such an amount of seed means small size seed pieces or too wide spacing in the rows to produce a profitable yield."

Do Away With Hallow-Heart. Here's How.

Suggestions furnished by the Michigan Agricultural College.

1. Plant potatoes on an alfalfa or clover seed.

2. Apply stable manure and commercial fertilizer.

3. Fit the seed bed early to conserve moisture.

4. Plant late varieties before June 1st.

5. Plant the hills closer together.

6. Use larger seed pieces.

7. Plant certified seed.

8. Give careful and shallow cultivation until the tubers set.

9. Spray with arsenicals and Bordeaux mixture.

10. Aim to secure a uniform and uninterrupted development during the whole season.

Saved Some Dough.

May 5th we accomplished the distribution of 3700 pounds of Sodafol (explosive like dynamite) thus saving the farmer $740.

Stuck.

Am stuck with three bushels early seed potatoes. Who wants 'em at a dollar a bushel, just what I paid? Will sell in bushel or half bushel lots.

Bottles of Inoculation.

The county agent has bottles of culture (inoculation) in his office, for clovers, sweet clover, alfalfa, and soy beans. Should always use it.

I know where there are three (3) bushels of high-class mammoth clover seed that can be had right off the bat.

Difference in Favor of Alfalfa.

Good mammoth clover seed costs $16.40 a bushel. Good Ontario Variegated Alfalfa seed can be had for $20.20 a bushel. Here is a difference of only $3.80 a bushel. Yet, this alfalfa can be cut twice a year, lasts several years, and each ton of alfalfa has as much more feed value than clover as the number 11 is larger than the number 7.

Become interested in alfalfa. You can sow it until in June. Ten pounds per acre is enough.

Sweet Clover.

On lands not specially adapted to alfalfa, sweet clover should be sowed before alfalfa to inoculate and enrich the ground.

Sweet clover seed is considerably cheaper than alfalfa. Ten pounds per acre is enough.

And Soy Beans.

All over the county I see a scarcity of hay fields. How is each farmer to feed a good sized herd of cows to bring in a good income, if he does not have lots of hay?

While waiting to get a start with clover, sweet clover, and alfalfa, lots of soy beans should be sowed, because they can be put in after corn planting and a crop of legume hay, rich in protein (milk making food element) can be cut latter part of August.

Try five (5) acres of SOYS.

Good Living on the Farm.

A leading authority on agriculture says of our farm homes: "We believe that we must not let our efforts at helping the home wait on increased income. Increased income too often leads away from the farm rather than towards building it up. We must teach people to live while they are yet poor. A better home and better living are not so much matters of increased income as they are matters of the spirit and the will to work."

A good table on the farm is largely a matter of a better garden, and of forethought in the growing of fruit and the production of milk, eggs and meat. Meat and milk and honey are within the reach of every farm table.

Cleanliness and orderliness are not matters of increased income.

Neatness is not a matter of income; it is one of the satisfactions of life flowing from right thinking and acting.

We can promote these without increased income.

Entitled to a Good Table.

"Every farm is entitled to a good table. A good table leads to hospitality, and hospitality leads to new and stimulating influences within the home and an exchange of friendly visits outside the home. Exchange of visits leads to new ideas and mental stimulation."

New ideas and mental stimulation lead to better farming, better home-making, and awakened interest.

Awakened interest leads to a better community, better roads, better schools, better churches, better fairs, and better social life.

We believe that too much stress cannot be laid on that type of home management that encourages a high standard of living on the farms of America.

Pride, effort, and accomplishment follow high standards of living as the day follows the night.

This is just the time of year to prepare for this better table and sociability and accomplishment.

MORO FANATICS' REVOLT GROWS

Danger Increasing On Bucos Island—Reinforcements Asked.

Manila—Fanatics menacing the constabulary in Surigao Province, Island of Mindanao, and Bucos Island, off the coast of Mindanao, have caused a serious situation, according to advices received here.

Col. Bowers, constabulary commander of Surigao, has asked for reinforcements on Bucos Island, where he led a force a few days ago to pacify members of the religious society of Colorum, whose recent clash with the troops resulted in the deaths of 19 constabulary soldiers and 80 fanatics.

It is known that several thousand Colorums live in the provinces of Surigao, Leyte and Samar, and they are said to be threatening to aid their comrades on Bucos Island. Many of the fanatics have vowed they will wipe out the constabulary.

Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood instructed Col. Bowers to continue the peaceful tactics of trying to persuade the fanatics to return to their homes, not using force unless it became absolutely necessary.

The gunboat Sacramento and the coastguard cutter Porillo will remain at the port of Surigao until the fanatics have dispersed.

Chinese Adopt Yankee Methods

Shanghai—Following similar action by municipalities in India, Australia and Japan, cities in China are putting into practice the latest methods adopted by American highway engineers for the construction of automobile roads and modern paved streets.

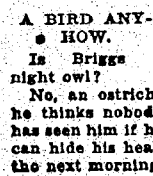

According to C. Harpur, commissioner of public works at Shanghai, Chinese highway bureaus are beginning to replace their waterbound macadam streets with asphalt concrete, increasing service ableness.

Feel Better In Few Hours Or No Cost

This is the time of year when your liver becomes sluggish and your intestines become clogged up with poisonous waste. Your liver does not properly purify blood that flows to your skin. ## TWICE TOLD TESTIMONY.

Grayling People Are Doing All They Can for Fellow Sufferers.

Grayling testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Grayling who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Last year many people in Grayling who again endorse Doan's Kidney Pills—confirm their former testimony. Here's a Grayling case:

Peter Wm. Christenson, Chestnut St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills on different occasions and they have always proven of great benefit to me. When my back was weak and lame and the kidney secretions were too frequent in action, a box or so of Doan's have always cured the complaint."

The above statement was given October 11, 1918 and on April 28, 1920, Mr. Christenson said: "Doan's are one good kidney medicine. They cured me in good shape, so I am glad to recommend them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Christenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Softening Phonograph Tones.

Undesirable high tones, or "whistles," an annoyance commonly experienced by phonograph users, may be eliminated by the use of interference tubes. They consist of U-shaped metal appliances, designed to be incorporated in a main tube that is fitted between the reproducer and tone-arm of a talking machine. According to the inventor, the arrangement of bypaths for the sound waves causes certain of these to be considerably softened with but little loss in volume.
